Seeing Progress?

Initiative Fatigue?
Solution: Pursue caring communication as a breakthrough objective.

A breakthrough objective:
- Central to mission.
- Everyone can contribute.
- If every person makes even an incremental improvement, it adds up to a breakthrough.
- AND A CULTURE CHANGE
Agenda

1. Why focus on the communication of caring as a breakthrough objective?
2. What is the Language of Caring?
3. How does the Language of Caring elevate performance?

1. Why focus on improving the communication of caring -- as a breakthrough objective?

We Have Strong Roots as Caring People Who Want to Make a Difference!
When We Fail to Make Our Caring Felt, People Suffer.

“People here have no idea what I’m going through.”

“This is scary! I wanna go home.”

“People don’t see me. I guess they’re too busy.”

And yet….

• These days, we are so busy… OVERLOADED with tasks and priorities.
• While we care deeply, we miss opportunities to COMMUNICATE our caring – to patients, families and each other.

Concretely, What IS the Language of Caring?

- Caring
- English
- Spanish
- Japanese
Turn to a Partner, Please.

- I’ll make a statement.
- If a patient said this to you, without thinking, what would be your first response?
- Share this with your partner.

Situation 1

“I’m in terrible pain. I need more medicine NOW!”

Situation 2

“These people are always complaining. I’m sick of it.”
Two Kinds of Communication

Heart
Emotion, Caring, Empathy

Head
Tasks, Information, Analysis, Explaining, Fixing, Plans

Both HEAD and HEART Have Benefits!

When we speak from the HEART:
• Patients, families, and co-workers feel important, cared for, and understood.
• They can hear the Head-to-Head part much better.

When we speak from the HEAD:
• People get valuable information.
• They appreciate answers and solutions.

These Days...
• Busyness and pressure make us mainly task-oriented.
• Most of our communication is from the HEAD, much less from the HEART.
• The result: Patients and families may view us as uncaring and not tuned in.

2016 Healthcare Improvement Forum

I'm in terrible pain. I need more medicine NOW!

HEAD Responses
• "How would you rate your pain from 1 to 10?"
• "You can have more medicine in 20 minutes."
• "Where is your pain exactly?"
• "I'll check with the doctor to see if there's a med that might work better.”

HEART Responses
• "I'm so sorry you're in pain!"
• "It must be very hard for you."
• "I want to help you, so you can feel comfortable.”

I'm in terrible pain. I need more medicine NOW!

HEAD Responses
• "What are they complaining about?"
• "How do you react?"
• "We could stop some of it by doing things differently."

HEART Responses
• "Wow, sounds like you've had a frustrating day!"
• "It IS maddening when you do your best for people and they aren't satisfied."
• "I think you do a great job and don't deserve complaints.

Challenge to You: Eavesdrop!

You will hear mostly HEAD messages… typically more than 90%!
The Ideal: The Heart-Head-Heart Sandwich

“I’m so sorry you’re in pain!”

“Tell me more about your pain.”

“I want to help you feel more comfortable!”

“It IS maddening when you do all you can for people, and they still aren’t happy.”

“What complaints are you hearing? I wonder if there’s something we can do to prevent them?”

“I’d like to help you get less stressed and feel the respect you deserve.”
The Language of Caring:
Skills That Make Our Caring Felt

1. The practice of presence
2. Acknowledging feelings
3. Showing caring nonverbally
4. Explaining positive intent
5. The blameless apology
6. The gift of appreciation
7. Say it again with HEART!

Does This Look Familiar?

Language of Caring Skill 1:
The Practice of Presence

"The greatest gift you can give another is the purity of your attention."

- Richard Moss
What is “Presence” or “Mindfulness?”

- Paying attention – undivided attention
- Staying on purpose – consciously
- In the present moment
- Without judging

Jon Kabat-Zinn

“Only when you are mindful with patients will you release your innate compassion.”

Presence: A Mental Discipline

- Quiet your racing mind.
- Take a deep breath.
- Shift to a posture of presence. Lean forward.
- Face the person fully. Give your undivided, respectful attention.
- Open your heart. Tune in.
- Don’t think about what you’re going to do next.

“You-hoo! I’m over here!”
Listen to Employees Talk About Their Experience with Presence.

Language of Caring Skill 2: Acknowledging Feelings

Use words to reflect back the feelings you think the other person may be having.

- “You sound upset.”
- “You look frustrated.”
- “I imagine this must be quite a relief for you.”

People feel understood when we show regard for their feelings, not just their words.

“How are you feeling today?”

“Fine.”
Acknowledging Feelings: You Try It!

Situation 1:
Coworker: “I’m so sick of Claudia calling off from work. She just isn’t reliable!”

Situation 2:
Patient: “NOW what do you want to do to me? Haven’t you done enough tests already?”

Language of Caring Skill 3: Showing Caring Nonverbally

65% (body movements, i.e., arms...)
7% (words)
38% (voice tone, facial expression, physical gestures)
"I'll be with you in a minute."

Best Approach:
Nonverbal Listening or “Attunement”
Match your nonverbal behavior to the other person’s.

Case in Point

Language of Caring Skill 4:
Explaining Positive Intent

"Intentions compressed into words enfold magical power."
Deepak Chopra
Explaining Positive Intent

- "I'm closing the door to protect your privacy."
- To a complaining person: "I want to help you."

<td>&quot;I want to tell patients when you will call them back!&quot;</td>
<td>&quot;I want to alert your patients for you so they won't feel frustrated and call you again and again.&quot;</td>
</tr>
</tbody>

<td>&quot;I'd like to go over 3 options with you.&quot;</td>
</tr>
</tbody>

Language of Caring Skill 5: The Blameless Apology

Show that we feel bad that the person is somehow suffering – without placing blame or blaming others.

The words ‘I’m sorry’ are magic words. They show openness and strength, not weakness. They mend relationships. They touch hearts.”

Blaming Apologies

“I’m really sorry. It’s a ZOO here today!”

“I’m sorry you had to wait. We’re really short-staffed.”

“I’m so sorry you were inconvenienced.”

Blameless Apologies

“I’m so sorry you were inconvenienced.”

“I’m sorry this is so painful.”

“I’m sorry this wasn’t what you were expecting.”
Language of Caring Skill 6: The Gift of Appreciation

- Thanks
- Appreciation
- A compliment
- Admiration

...when people least expect it!

"The deepest principle of human nature is a craving to be appreciated."
- William James

Appreciation can transform what might otherwise be strained interactions.

Language of Caring Skill 7: Say it Again With HEART!

"If your words are soft and sweet, they won’t be as hard to swallow if you have to eat them."
- H.H. Breckenridge
Say it Again With HEART!

- When you've done all you can and the person is still not satisfied…
- Say hard things in a caring way without backing down.
- The skill of last resort.

- How?
- Express a lot of ❤
- Repeat your main message – your bottom line – as often as you need to, always with caring.

Listen for Say it Again With HEART.

The Language of Caring

Mental Model: ❤️❤️❤️

HEART Skills:
1. The practice of presence
2. Acknowledging feelings
3. Showing caring nonverbally
4. Explaining positive intent
5. The blameless apology
6. The gift of appreciation
7. Say it again with HEART
The Bottom Line

• Caring gets lost in a sea of tasks and procedures.
• People don’t know we’re caring unless we communicate our caring.
• By communicating our caring, we ease people’s anxiety, personalize our care and service, earn cooperation, and improve the patient, family and coworker.

How Does the Language of Caring Make Best Practices More Effective?

• RELATE
• Proactive/Hourly Rounding
• Executive and senior leader rounds

Proactive/Hourly Rounding

- Approach patient. Smile and greet warmly.
- Sit. Become very present to them. Focus fully.
- State your positive intent. “Here I am again to see how you’re doing and help in any way I can.”
- Ask open-ended questions and listen.
- Observe for feelings and acknowledge them in an inquiring way: “You look a bit nervous?” Wait for confirmation and then inquire.
- Be very present until the last second. End with a warm wish and explain what the patient can expect next.

- CAHPS improvement
- A culture of caring

“When someone says to us, 'I care about your suffering,' a deep healing begins.”

Thich Nhat Hanh
“At times, our own light goes out and is rekindled by a spark from another person. Each of us has cause to think with deep gratitude of those who have lighted the flame within us.”

Albert Schweitzer
